istence of high excitement. The Government, in the to have had the preference in all these three resconvocation of Congress, and by the ministerial writers, had fully demonstrated a desire to annul the Constitution of 1856, which is obnoxious to the bishops, clergy, and military, having destroyed their "fueros," suppressed tithes and parochial church taxes, and reduced much of the executive power. Of course such a Constitution must be popular with the masses. When these demonstrations were made by the Executive Council, General Castilla was in Arequipa, and on his return to Lima he maintained a studied silence upon this subject until the night before the meeting of Congress, when he that it was indispensable to recognize the Constitution. and proclaim the extraordinary Congress of 1858 duly installed, which was received with boisterous and enthusiastic applause of the galleries. If Congress had assumed the character of "constituent," thus annulling the Constitution, I have but little doubt that a rising of the people would have ensued, in which the clergy would have suffered severely.

angry correspondence with the Minister of Foreign Relations of that Republic, which terminated in a remonstrance, application to this Government for his recall, and a notification to him that all correspondence had ceased. At this the Government took great umbrage-Mr. Zevallos replied, rather roughly, that the Executive Council saw no reason to recall their minister, and demanded his re-instatement. This being refused by the the Equatorian Government, a decree of blockade of the entire coast of that country was issued.

"Some vessels of war were immediately dispatched from Callao to ostablish the blockade—the large steam frigate Amazon proceeded up the river and anchored in neck. front of the town, where she still remains; smaller vessels were a few days afterwards sent, and there are now five or six vessels on the Equatorian coast-quite sufficient to make the blockade effective.

"It is reported that the Government of the Equator is now disposed to reinstate the Peruvian Minister, and give satisfaction to that of Peru-if not, war will undoubtedly be declared. The army is being increased to 15,000 men, and all of the vessels of war and armed transports are ready for sea. .

Miscellaneous.

On the 21st of October all the monthly liabilities of Spain had been paid; leaving $2,000,000 in the treasury. Such a state of things has not been seen for some years in that country. Austria is in treaty with Turkey for the cession of a port in the sea of Marmora.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, writing from on board the U.S. steamship Powhatan, has some sensible suggestions relative to that provision of the Treaty just negotiated by

How to Christianize Japan.

Mr. Harris, with the Japanese, which provides "Americans may build churches and worship their God, and religious freedom is also granted to all Japanese." This article, the Ledger writer justly says, is "a great triumph."

" But it is a triamph which must be carefully recieved. Japan is not yet ready for the modern missionary; nor must it be lost sight of that it was to missionaries of 1600 that her long seclusion has been owing. It was the unchristian feuds of Catholic priests of rival societies, which then deluged Japan with blood, and we have now more rival societies, (denominations) than then; and I much doubt if feeling is not equally as bitter. The Japanese are like all liberal, and sincere, and humble Christians in one respect, at any rate. They cannot understand how people can worship the same God, or God who says, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' and yet who can fight over a convert and abuse each other behind each others' backs. How, then, is Japan to be converted? The answer is simple enoug-by example. Let our chizens settle in and about the ports that have been, and that yet will be opened to us. Let some of them be latent missionaries, if you will, but nothing active but strict morality and kindness of bearing. Thus will their love and esteem be won, for they are a people who appreciate the most trivial act of kindness. When our citizens muster in sufficient numbers at any one place, let them build a small church, just as they would at home. When one church will not hold them, build a second, a third, a fourth: and I will venture to predict that the Government will build their churches for them rather than throw any obstacles in their way. Thus may a part of Japan be converted, while the other part must unavoidably be degraded by the vices and rascality which follow in the wake of commerce.

" Now, take another view of this subject. Suppose that next year a dozen or more sincere but rival missionaries burst suddenly into Japan and begin to proclaim as many different creeds. One telligence to the afflicted widow. says, there are three gods to one : you must do this, and you must not do that, if you expect to be Mr. Grizzle's body. saved. Another, there is but one God, and all men are destined by His mercy to be saved. One need not ask what the result of all this would be -it is self-evident. These honest and simpleminded, and sensible people would say; 'We had better stick to our gods of stone, for these foreigners all seem to think differently.' Let commerce, therefore, open the road for the missionary, as it has already opened it for the sailor-commerce, assisted by the example of those who settle among them and share occasionally their simple hospital-

Sixty years ago, pall holders, and other persons attending funerals, wore white leather gloves. In 1741 men and women's "white glazed lamb' gloves were offered for sale in Boston.

Ruffs, however odd it may appear to us, were formerly worn by males as well as females. Queen Elizabeth appointed officers, it is related, to clip the ruff of every person seen wearing it of larger dimensions than the law permitted. A clercalled up some of the leading members and told them gyman in 1608 took occasion to allude to a lady who wore a ruff that looked " like a sail; yea, Although a report of this had reached me early on the like a rainbow." Ruffs were wired as well as morning of the 17th, yet I did not give full credence to starched. The picture of Governor Winthrop appears with an elegant ruff. The custom was imported by some of our primitive settlers, but in 1629 this part of the dress became so enlarged that the Legislature of Massachusette felt obliged to command that it be kept within due bounds.

In the reign of James I. bands succeeded the full, stiff ruff. They were prepared with wire and starch, so as to stand out " horizontally and square-They were held by a cord and tassel at the People of the ton had the strings and tassels of their bands sometimes elegantly scalloped and embroidered, which custom finally attracted the attention of our civil authorities, who, in 1634, · forbade bands to be ornamented with costly work." In 1639 a law was likewise enacted prohibiting the wearing of bands so broad as had been the fashion.

The Manufacture of Sugar.

When the mixture ceases to effect either the test for acid or alkali, the At Marseilles, at a banquet given to M. de Lesseps, that gentleman stated: "That the works of the Suez Canal will commence in three months, the suez Canal will be opened in three years."

Impurities will be precipitated, and the juice thus purified is to be subjected to the usual mode of clarification and concentration.

Description:

Pure raw sugar is now obtained from the sugarcane, without having undergone any subsequent process decolorization or refining, prepared by effecting the last stages of concentration of the juice of the cane in a vacuum, at a temperature insufficient to produce any chemical changes in its constituent parts. By this improved and scientific process of manufacture, no molasses or uncrystalizable sugar is formed, and there is consequently an increase in the quantity of sugar obtained of twenty-five per cent. This establishes the fact, that molasses is not an educt of the cane, but merely a product of the former operation, from the intense and long-continued degree of heat employed in the processes. The sugar thus obtained, is in perfect, pure, transparent, granular crystals, developing the true crystaline form of the sugar, and being entirely free from the least portion of uncrystalizable sugar or coloring matter .- [Hunt's Merch. How Coffee came to be Used.

It is somewhat singular to trace the manner in which arose the use of the common beverage, coffee, without which few persons, in any half or wholly civilized country in the world, would seem hardly able to exist. At the time Columbus discovered America it had never been known or used. It only grew in Arabia and upper Ethiopia. The discovery of its use as a beverage is ascribed to the superior of a monastery, in Arabia, who, desirous of preventing the monks from sleeping at their nocturnal services, made them drink the infusion of coffee, upon the report of some shepherds, who observed that their flocks were more lively after browsing on the fruit of that plant. Its reputation spread through the adjacent countries, and in about 200 years it reached Paris. A single plant brought there in 1714, became the parent stock of all the French coffee plantations in the West Indies. The extent of the consumption can now hardly be realized. The United States alone annually consume it at the cost of its landing of from fifteen to sixteen millions of dollars. You may know the Arabia or Mocha, the best coffee, by its small bean of a dark yellow color. The Java and East Indian, the next in quality, are larger and of a paler yellow. The West Indian Rio has a bluish or greenish, gray tint.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS THE UNDERSIGNED HAS BEEN INFORMED on good authority that great irregularity exists in the taking and killing of the wild cattle on the mountains on Hawaii, belonging to His Majesty and to the Government, by parties who claim or pretend to claim right under bills of sale from His Maj-esty or from the Government, and whereas, from the nature of the country and other causes it is almost impossible to place agents to guard the interests of His Majesty and of the Govern-ment, and whereas all parties having legal claims on the said wild cattle have already had time sufficient, if they have used due diligence to remove the same.

Now therefore, the undersigned hereby gives notice to all parties who purchased wild cattle running on the mountains on Hawaii, previous to the 1st day of January 1867, to remove the same if not already removed, on or before the 1st day of May next, after which time, parties taking wild cattle will be Interior Office, Jan. 1 L.
